Sermons

Sunday, September 20, "Spiritual Food for Survival", Rev. Stephen Kendrick

Stephen writes... "This is our annual Partnership of the Historic Bostons service celebrating the founding of our great city. This interfaith service is meant to be a celebration of not only our past, but our modern community. This topic was not chosen by me, but in learning what our forbearers ate and drank, I have found it to be a nice subject that lends itself well to last week's Water Communion. Our forbearers didn't know what spiritual hunger was, but we do. I will dive into this subject matter. Bread will be baked during the service and served after the service. See you in church!"

Sunday, September 27, "A Light in Dark Places", Sam Teitel

Sam writes... "I will be talking about the flaming chalice and what it means. Unitarian Universalist not only view it as a symbol to represent us as individuals, but to represent our movement. It is a symbol of our hope for light when we are trying to find our way in the dark places in our lives."

Sunday, October 4, "A Year of Living Dangerously", Rev. Kate Braestrup

Kate writes... "A sermon about deliberately engaging ideas and people you would much rather avoid..."
